

Headteacher's blog

This Week...Monday was the first day back after half term. The staff commented that we have a mere 8 weeks before Christmas however they are also gearing up for 'scary' week and Bonfire night. Seedlings have a witch's kitchen corner and a host of 'scary' activities that the children are enjoying Seedlings had a fabulous scary dancing disco – photos on the website.

In fact most pupils dressed up for Halloween and had fun in class.

We are already practicing for our Christmas production "Lights, Camel, Action!" a 'strictly' themed nativity play. Each year the often chaotic rehearsals including the dances that go wrong and the off key singing are replaced by wonderful final performances, although secretly I enjoy it when things go a tiny bit wrong – it adds to the charm of it all.

And another thing! The recent governmental response to funding – giving us £10,000 for extras! We need that for necessities!

Reminders

Every single pupil should have contact details of parents and carers in case of emergency. We have had cases of children going to hospital with members of staff. If parents or carers were uncontactable they are therefore unaware of the situation. Please check that you have sent in this information.

And Finally...

Take care near fireworks and bonfires.

We need old tea towels and towels just to replace worn ones (and single children friendly duvet covers) Please!

Best wishes to all from Mrs B.
